

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA and
THE STATE OF WISCONSIN,

V.

Defendants.

Case 1:10-cv-00910-WCG Filed 11/22/13 Page 1 of 6 Document 911

(noted in the third column of Exhibit A),² which were used for demonstrative purposes only.

On or before November 27, 2013, Plaintiffs and Defendants will send to the Court copies of a hard drive containing the exhibits listed in Exhibit A.

Dated: November 22, 2013 2

² With respect to the “Admission Status” of the Administrative Record exhibits (Exhibits 1-1376)—other than those which Plaintiffs offered into evidence during briefing and to which there were no objections by Defendants—Defendants contend that there continues to be a dispute as to whether they were admissible for all purposes. It is Defendants’ position that since the Court did not resolve whether the Administrative Record exhibits were admitted for all purposes, such exhibits are admissible only for the purposes of evaluating the remedy, as the court concluded that objections were moot because “the court’s conclusions above have not depended on any evidence to which there has been a salient objection, which means that most of the objections are rendered moot or, at most, that they speak to the weight, rather than the admissibility, of the evidence in question” (Dkt. 794 at 68-69), and that “materials from the administrative record did not play a material role in my conclusions regarding divisibility and apportionment.” (Dkt. 794 at 75.) The Parties agree that, when the Court overruled objections to non-Administrative Record exhibits, the Court admitted those exhibits for all purposes. Plaintiffs contend that, since the Court overruled Defendants’ objections to the admissibility of the Administrative Record Exhibits, they are likewise admitted for all purposes, just like every other exhibit with an admissibility objection.
